

Our Vision

Imagine a world where the first thought of an individual or collective is...
“What impact will this have on the environment.”

I know this sounds unrealistic and for some this is an unrealistic ideal to live by, but this is also an ideal that is taught and learnt by those wanting a deeper understanding and connection to something beyond their immediate world. Being connected to nature and living in harmony with her no longer comes naturally to us, and we want to bring that instinctual way of existing back into the lives of our clients.

There are numerous practices, philosophy's and terms across the industries that work with the land. Whether it's creating gardens, growing food or tending to the health of our environment, you will here such terminology as 'Native Landscapes', 'Habitat Gardens', 'Organic' 'Non GMO', 'Natural Farming', 'Regenerative Agriculture', 'Sustainability', 'Permaculture', 'Bio-dynamics', etc.

With all of those terms it would be hard to know where to start. Fortunately no matter the heading everyone in those fields are looking for that same connection to traditions that were once so common and natural to our everyday lives. All of these practices have a common thread and that is to work with Nature, after all our she is our greatest teacher. That is where we envision our work and services to navigate and assimilate to, but we need to start somewhere.

To start at the beginning we first need to acquire the wanting! Not the wanting for a bigger house, a better car, that outfit or holiday, we need to crave the wanting for life and we believe this is possible through rediscovering, reconnecting and returning to that innate relationship we were born with to Mother Nature...

This is where Return To Nature originated for us.
It seemed the most simplest way of delivering a message of where to start!

There is a physical and psychological disruption that occurs in our bodies whenever we spend time surrounded by nature. She affects every facet of our being and there is nothing else quite like it in the world. Our bodies respond, our hormone levels change, our emotions flow and our connection grows to that which is life sustaining.

We hope that with our help we can open that part of an individual to care more about the environment by returning to nature. We want to create and be apart of a community that are ready to understand, support and give back to a world in which we take so much from. Through the simple act of establishing your own garden, no matter the size, we believe this is a beneficial step towards this more empathetic state of living. Our work is aimed at providing this very step and our vision is to see such a community grow.

We hold the things we value the most close to our hearts, so lets make Mother Nature one of those most treasured things in life, so we may take care of her as she takes care of us.
